

New Media Communication New Courses in Development

Over the next two years, we intend to offer courses in the following areas. Topics have been chosen in response to industry needs and student interest. Note, course names and subject matter are subject to change:

Web Layout and Design

This course focuses on using CSS and other techniques to create professional looking web sites.

Web Programming

This course features web scripting and programming.

Advanced Principles of Design

This course focuses on advanced design techniques, including layout, grid theory, and typography. Students will produce professional looking designs, including posters, advertisements, flyers, book covers, and newsletters.

Digital Art Studios

We are developing a new series of courses for teaching students video, animation, and other multimedia courses. Students will have opportunities to progress from basic to advanced levels.